

Stennis remarks express regret over widespread NOO misunderstanding

SPECIAL TO THE ECHO
WASHINGTON, D.C. — Senator John C. Stennis Wednesday expressed regret that "emotion has been allowed to obscure the basic facts" about the proposed transfer of the Naval Oceanographic Office to Hancock County.

In a Senate speech, Stennis said his remarks were intended to "set the record straight...since this proposed relocation has long been the subject of widespread misunderstanding and misinterpretation, particularly in the Washington area."

Stennis stressed that the Navy has recognized since 1963 the need to consolidate the program which is presently scattered in 19 buildings at four separate locations over a 50-mile radius in the Washington metropolitan area. The Mississippi senator continued, "the need of the Oceanographic Office for highly qualified people and the most efficient, scientific and technical facilities and equipment is not subject to question. The fact is that the Oceanographic program is a vital element in our national security requirements and becomes more important with each new development in undersea warfare."

Stennis explained, "The facilities at NSTL are virtually tailor-made for a functional and efficient Oceanographic program. This facility belongs to the taxpayers and it should be utilized in such a manner that it will be of the greatest value to the government, which will get maximum use out of every tax dollar." Stennis pointed out that the transfer has been approved "by two branches of the government—the executive and legislative" and expressed "little doubt...that when all the facts are developed and become known to the court, it will also have been approved by the third branch—the judicial."

The Mississippi senator reminded his colleagues that the Navy seeks to improve the program's efficiency and that this consolidation and transfer "is in accord with the Congressional policy about moving Naval activities from the Washington area which has been expressed on several occasions." Among the several Congressional directives concerning over-concentration of military elements in the Washington area, Stennis referred to a Senate Appropriations Committee report which states: "When moves are contemplated, the Committee expects the Navy to move to areas where there are existing Federal facilities and hold new construction to a minimum."

In this regard, Stennis outlined the unique advantages for the program at the Mississippi site. "This modern space technology facility was built by NASA in the mid-1960's at a cost of over $400 million," he said. "The estimated replacement cost of the facilities to be made available is about $30 million, including the one-of-a-kind Oceanographic test and calibration facility." Of the five existing federal installations chosen by the Navy where consolidation would be possible, Stennis pointed out, "the construction-modification cost at NSTL is $7.5 million...the lowest of the five by far."

Countering specific charges about the area made by opponents to the transfer, Stennis said the Mississippi Gulf Coast "is a good place to live" and pointed out that "some of the employees who have already been moved have sent word back that they are glad they made the move and enjoy their new surroundings thoroughly." Concerning the question on available housing in the area, Stennis quoted from a General Accounting Office (GAO) report of Nov. 20, which says: "Sufficient housing units are currently available in the NSTL area to accommodate the anticipated influx." Regarding real estate prices in the Mississippi Gulf Coast area, Stennis predicted,

"Oceanographic Office employees will be pleasantly surprised to discover the type of housing their dollars will provide" as compared to the Washington area costs.

The GAO report also found that the schools in the five Mississippi communities and one Louisiana community within a 30-mile radius of NSTL have a capacity for 4,428 additional students. Stennis pointed out that a total number of 1,141 students are estimated to be transferred into the area.

'Pyramid' possible solution to Hancock garbage

By CAROLE LANGE

If the plans of Eco-Notrum Institute, a non-profit problem solving group, are put into effect, motorists on Interstate 10 may see a 100 foot concrete pyramid rising out of the flatlands in central Hancock County.

The proposed pyramid, to be constructed on a two acre site, would be filled with ten-foot layers of garbage, and according to F. Shattuck, Eco-Notrum director, could provide cities in Hancock County with a less expensive means of garbage disposal than the system currently in operation.

Shattuck's remarks came at Wednesday's public meeting on a solid waste resource recovery program sponsored by the Gulf Coast Regional Planning Commission (GCRPC). Purpose of the meeting, according to John McMillan, Mississippi State Board of Health, was to get comments from the public concerning the feasibility of waste resource recovery and the possible construction of a waste recycling plant in one of the three Gulf Coast counties.

"There is marketable material in waste, if recovery of it is properly managed," McMillan said.

Illustrating his point, McMillan said Mississippi leads the nation in the recycling of junked automobiles into construction steel. "In fact," McMillan said, "about 85 percent of our interstate highways have been built with this type steel."

Chic Anderson, director of the R&D Center's Coast Office, said, on a national average, over $1.6 million in revenue could be realized if only 25.2 percent of the total waste could be reclaimed. As an example, he said ferrous metal products, yielding 27,800 tons of waste annually, would account for a net market price of $22 per ton; aluminum, 2,300 ton annual yield, $200 per ton; and glass, 31,700 ton annual yield, $15 per ton.

When asked if the $1.6 million in revenue would represent a savings or a direct profit, Anderson said at the present time, the revenue would definitely represent a profit. "McMillan interjected that the State Board of Health has prefiled a bill with the Legislature to establish "ownership of garbage" which would determine who would receive the revenue.

Anderson said that the amount of waste generated annually by one person is one ton. He said in the short run, taxpayers may not realize a "monetary payoff" from a recycling venture, but he added that either "an aesthetic, health, or environmental payoff" would surely be noticed.

In addition to the Eco-Notrum proposal of building the pyramid, which would utilize the cities' current collection system yet cost $2 per truck less to collect and transport, other suggestions for recovery systems included a compost, parallelism (the process of putting waste in an environment without oxygen, generating a gas) and processing the residue then hauling it from the Coast counties to more suitable sites.

Wednesday's meeting was the first of three such meetings scheduled Wednesday and Thursday in Hancock, Harrison, and Jackson Counties. Paul Desmarais, GCRPC representative, said additional meetings would be scheduled in the future as results of the feasibility study were made available.

Navy asks for reconsideration

Special to the Echo

WASHINGTON, D.C.—A spokesman for U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell said Tuesday that the Navy has filed a motion asking for a "reconsideration or modification" of a preliminary injunction issued two weeks ago which called for a partial halt to the transfer of employees from the National Oceanographic Administration's Maryland office to new quarters in Hancock County.

The spokesman said plaintiffs in the case a citizens group from Prince Georges County, MD, have 15 days to respond to the motion filed Dec. 15. Then, according to the spokesman, "Judge Gesell can either set down a date for a hearing on the motion or rule on the current papers."

The "papers" in question refer to the Navy's "environmental impact study made prior to the selection of Hancock County as the NOAA site. When Gesell issued the injunction, he said the Navy had failed to point out the unavailability of adequate housing and schools in the county for moderate income families and racial minorities.

After the injunction was issued, Russ Greenbaum, Navy spokesman at NASA, said the injunction only affected those employees whose jobs would be terminated if they did not make the move.

Ballentine barricaded

The 300 block of Ballentine Street was closed to traffic Wednesday while a crew from the city's Utilities Department repaired a broken sewer line which caused a portion of the street to cave in. Working to drain the water and fill the depression with sand are, from left, Curtis Bell, Charlie Laneaux, Jimmy Rutherford, and Anthony Alexis.

Council votes to extend Esterbrook sewage lines

The Bay St. Louis city council voted 2-1 Monday to extend its sewer line on Esterbrook Street an additional 1,650 feet, a move "that could enhance the city's tax structure by $12,000," according to City Utilities Commissioner Lucien Kidd.

Kidd made the proposal after he was told by Jay Triche, president of Hancock Builders Inc., that his company was prepared to build 25 new homes on the street at an average cost of approximately $31,000 per home. As part of the proposal, Kidd said Triche's firm also planned to purchase a lot to build a lift station for the sewer line at a cost of approximately $19,000.

Mayor Warren Carver said he was reluctant for the city to spend the initial $10,000 required to construct the sewer line "especially if we get that built and Mr. Triche can't sell but two or three homes."

Kidd pointed out that he planned to construct the sewer line at 400 foot intervals "from manhole to manhole" and added that the city would not have to expend the $10,000 at one time.

"That area has the greatest potential of any area on the entire Gulf Coast," Kidd said. He continued, "We can never progress unless we get people in here, and since the Navy is complaining that we don't have the right kind of houses for them, this would be our perfect opportunity to do something about it."

Kidd closed his argument for the proposal claiming, "If we don't develop that area, we might as well give it back to the Indians."

Commissioner Clarence Ladner, who had been relatively silent throughout the discussion, said he felt the building of new homes on Esterbrook Street would be "an improvement and a progressive step," and made the motion to accept the proposal. Mayor Carver cast the dissenting vote.

"Please come back...please don't forget us," they cry

By CAROLE LANGE

Have you ever wondered what it would be like to spend Christmas Day, or every day for that matter, confined within the same four walls, seeing the same people all in much the same position as yourself?

I never wondered about it either until I visited Gulf View Haven Nursing Home.

It was the look of expectancy, quickly clouded by disappointment, in the eyes of the patients when they saw I wasn't who they might have been hoping for that made me ask, what if it were me?

Upon entering the nursing home, the first thing I noticed was the heat. Because many of the patients must remain in bed, and those who do get up wear little more than nightclothes and a robe, the building is overheated to the average person. But to me, the impression was that of being trapped in a stifling enclosure.

A large blackboard stood at one end of the lobby. Written in large script were the words: "Smile, God loves you. Today is Monday, Dec. 15, 1975. It is warm and sunny outside. The next holiday is Christmas." It seemed strange to realize these things were not obvious to one who lived on the "inside."

A brightly decorated Christmas tree with its lights twinkling, towered to the ceiling in a corner of the lobby. A smaller, though equally decorated, tree stood on the admissions desk, but somehow the bare white walls seemed to detract from the intended gaiety.

The physical trappings of the holiday were evident, but where was the underlying joy?

During my visit, I encountered a total of 10 patients. There was the very talkative woman with large rheumy eyes who eyed me suspiciously at first, but apparently decided I meant her no harm.

A strap from her slip dangled on her shoulder and when she couldn't pull it up herself I was called upon to help. "Are you married?" she asked, but before I could reply I was told in a conspiratorial whisper not to worry because "the man in the brown pants would marry me."

As we talked she would pull a well-crescented envelope out of her pocket, trace the script with her finger, and slowly fold it in half before returning it to its place in the pocket.

Three other ladies sat on leather chairs in the lobby. One, dressed quite plainly with her hairing at her side, occasionally glanced through a new paperback.

In another part of the room, two aged ladies sat, one staring at a television set and the other staring into space.

"You talkative woman," one of the ladies said, "you talk too much. You talk about your husband and your son and your daughter, but you don't talk about your own life."

At one point, I observed a woman who was sitting in a wheelchair, looking out the window. She was looking at the trees and the sky, but she was not looking at the world outside the window.

Iake "her medicine." My friend was suspicious of the liquid in the little paper cup, but drank it nevertheless after some pleadings by the nurse and the lady with the handbag who assured her that it wouldn't hurt.

The nurse disposed of 1 of the drinks by mating it into assorted paper cups, but the two ladies who sat together at the far end of the room shared a drink, passing the bottle back and forth.

I did not intend to go upstairs, but circumstances made it necessary.

Climbing the green-carpeted stairs I noticed a large wet spot on the floor and realized that it was human feces.

On reaching the 4th into the second floor landing, I was met by the harsh, white light of a hospital corridor.

plastic pants. "I can't stand it," patients here are so afraid of the cold.

The heat was unbearable, and the noise was deafening. The hallways, all hushed in a way that was almost eerie, seemed to be a prison.

When St. Andrew's members here, they were told to be patient and to wait for the bus that would take them to the bus stop.

My mind in the nursing home was approximately 40 minutes. I was looking at my watch, but I was not looking at the clock. I was looking at the clock, but I was not looking at the clock.

When I got to my car, I cried. I'm going back and I'm not going to stop.

Police report rash of city burglaries

The Bay St. Louis Police Department reports a rash of burglaries in the city last week are still under investigation.

Police Chief Billy Carbonette said a burglary at the L&N Depot Dec. 11 resulted in thieves getting a tool box and tools valued at $300.

In another reported theft last Thursday, Carbonette said a tackle box, outboard motor, fishing gear, anchor and battery valued at $800 were stolen from the residence of Roger Anderson, 143 Chartres Street.

In two incidences Dec. 10 and Dec. 16, two citizens band radios were reportedly stolen from the owners' automobiles.

Michael Green, 457 Thomas St., reported a CB radio stolen from his car while parked in the Winn-Dixie parking lot.

Max Wuesthoff, 517 DeMontluzin, reported a CB radio stolen from his car parked in front of his home Dec. 16. In another incident Monday, William B. Ross reported a 1974 Ford half-ton pickup stolen from his home at 208 Carroll Avenue sometime during the night of Dec. 14. The truck is blue and white with a 1976 Mississippi license tag RGJ 440.

Burglars reportedly got away with an assortment of dental supplies, including 50 capsules of novacaine, after breaking into the office of Dr. Laton Weinberg Jr. at 404 Dunbar Avenue last Dec. 12. The burglars apparently gained entry through a window on the south side of the building.

Carbonette said Wednesday there did not appear to be any connection between any of the burglaries, though he added juveniles are usually responsible for the theft of CB radios and tape players from automobiles.

To prevent theft of these items, Carbonette said motorists should lock their cars, and if possible conceal the speakers of a tape player. He also advised car owners to park in a well lighted area.

"It may be expensive, but some tape players and radios can be concealed in a car glove compartment," Carbonette said.

He warned that a tape case visible in the car "is a sure indication that a tape player is hooked up" and added that persons leaving their cars parked for a long period of time should lock all valuable items in the trunk.

Health center schedules women's awareness group

If you enjoyed the Women's Worry Clinic, you'll love our Women's Awareness Group says a staff member of the Gulf Coast Mental Health Center.

It's a new approach to gaining insight into women's personal problems. Important topics such as birth control, abortion, sexuality, self-fulfillment, marriage, rearing children, and the single woman and her relationships will be frankly and openly discussed.

This is not a "therapy clinic," but more of a rap session a spokesman said. Some of the group meetings will be preceded by guest speakers who will join in on informative discussion of their topic, but the group will retain the flexibility to be attune to the interests of the group members.

The Awareness Group will meet for 10 weeks starting Tuesday, December 16, from 6:30 - 8 p.m.

Goals of the groups include: Increasing women's ability to cope successfully with their husbands, children, friends and other relationships.

Helping women become more aware of what resources the community offers and how to obtain their services. Helping women gain a greater insight into themselves, their life, and their movement toward self-fulfillment.

There is a nominal registration fee of $10 and a $2 charge per session. This is to help pay for materials the Center will supply to each attending member.

For additional information, phone Liz Galloway or Susan Stevens at 863-1132.

Bug-Fighters Banged Skillet, Built Bonfires

Compared to today's integrated systems of pest control, early-day cotton farmers' efforts to combat insects ranged from the sublime to the ridiculous. All of the early methods had one thing in common, though, according to the National Cotton Council: they were completely unsuccessful.

In some areas, blazing torches were carried through cottonfields at night or bonfires were built at strategic locations in vain attempts to lure moths to their deaths in the fire.

One plantation owner in Georgia wrote of sending his field hands into the woods to collect oozing sap from sweetgum trees. The sap was mixed with hot water and then poured between the rows of cotton to provide a sticky trap for insects. The planter reported this device caused the Georgia evenings to be scented with a delightful aroma, but had little effect on the pests.

In Mississippi, cotton growers hung white flags on poles placed throughout the fields in hope that insects would lay their eggs on the cloth instead of the cotton plants.

Perhaps the most unusual method was that of skilting-banging. A North Carolina grower described the approach in 1818:

"I formed a phalanx of 50 workers on the windward end of one of my cotton fields just about dusk on an evening in early July, last. Each man had an iron skillet freshly scoured to produce the purest tones, and a bar of soft iron from the wheelwright's shop.

"Upon signal, the hands marched down the rows, beating the skillets and whipping the air of my cotton field with loud bangings. It was our thought that the din would drive away the cotton moths, but instead, it caused my mules to break out of the barn lot and we spent the remainder of the night rounding them up."

Deaths

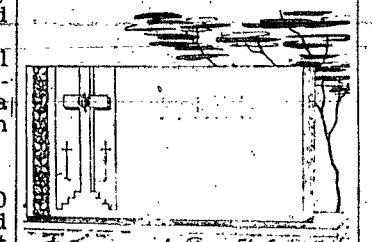

CHARLES VONTURE
Funeral services for Charles L. Vonture, 91, 337 State Street, were held Tuesday at 10 a.m. from the St. Rose de Lima Catholic Church followed by burial in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Mr. Vonture, a former New Orleans resident, died at his home Sunday.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Corrine Vonture; and one daughter, Mrs. Ezerine Bibb, Bay St. Louis.

Our modern phrase, "Today is the first day of the rest of your life," is merely a reaffirmation of the Biblical words: "Old things are passed away; behold all things are become new."

Pass teacher receives outstanding teacher award

Recognition given

Willie C. Acker proudly holds from Governor William T. Certificate of Outstanding Service received this week. Photo by John Jacob

VA service office/Chester Curcay

Willie C. Acker of 512 Washington Road, Bay St. Louis, has been named an Outstanding Citizen of the State of Mississippi.

The honor, bestowed this week, came in the form of a certificate signed by Governor William T. Waller citing Acker for his educational achievements with his students at Pass Christian High School, and his devotion to community and the American society.

The citation reads, "In recognition of your tireless and dedicated efforts in educating young Mississippians, thereby contributing to the enlightenment of our great state and all its people."

Acker, who teaches American History, Civics, and Mississippi History, was awarded his Bachelor of Science Degree from Alcorn University, Lorman, Miss., earned his masters degree from Mississippi College in Clinton, and is presently working towards his doctorate through the University of Southern Mississippi in Hattiesburg.

Married to the former Miss Eartha Mae Dorsey, he is the father of two children, Deidra, 10, and Darlene, 8. A member of the Valena C. Jones Methodist Church, Acker is a brother of Alpha Phi Alpha Educational Fraternity and the Parent-Teachers Association of Pass High School.

In speaking of his philosophy of teaching, Acker says his primary aim is to prepare young people in the classroom to become young, responsible citizens able to take their place within the existing social structure.

"Citizenship," he said, "is caring for your home, neighborhood, and community."

In Scotland they say that the first gift was considered a piece of ready vengeance.

Acker has met Governor Waller on several occasions during his civics group field trips.

Acker said he gets much of his encouragement in teaching young people to love and support their country from an old saying his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Acker of Pearlinton, used to have.... "Whatever you do, do your best. As long as you do your best, someone else will know it!"

One of 17 children, 16 of whom are living, Acker also sponsors a softball team and a basketball team, both called the Afro Bullets.

"This is an effort to keep young people off the streets, and instead develop a feeling of sportsmanship in them," he said.

Befana is the name of the good fairy of Italian children, who is supposed to fill their stockings with toys when they go to bed on Twelfth Night.

What constitutes income for pension purposes?

The following is an explanation and partial list of what the Veterans Administration counts as income when figuring the amount of pension to which a claimant is entitled.

In general it can be stated income from any source is counted as income. Specifically they are wages; salaries; earnings from self employment; bonus from employers; unemployment compensation; stock dividends; interest on savings; workmens compensation; rental income (NET); and gifts of money. Social security, railroad retirement and other retirement income, are reported as total received, however the V.A. deducts 10 percent from the gross amount for their purposes.

A married veteran must report the total amount of the earnings of the spouse, although income from strictly wages are not counted by the V.A. If a spouse has an income other than wages or unearned income the amount that exceeds $1200 per year may be counted as income of the veteran, since it is logical to assume part of the income would be spent by or on the veteran.

It is possible for a veteran or a widow of a veteran to have an income in excess of the allowable limits established by the V.A. and still draw a pension. An example would be, if they were "patients" in a nursing home where the cost of maintenance and medicine cost as much as $200 per month, as is often the case, the cost of medicine would be considered excessive. In such case a letter would be obtained from the nursing home stating that the claimant was there and had been a patient since date of entry. The claim for pension would be income from all sources. The amount the nursing home expenses exceeded 5 percent of the reported income of the veteran would be deducted from the income and count as some other lower the pension within the allowable limits.

Many former guardsmen eligible for pay under retirement system

JACKSON — An undetermined number of former Mississippi National Guardsmen may be unknowingly missing out on a good deal by not checking into the Guard's retirement system.

Command Sergeant Major Lynn Caulfield of Headquarters Mississippi National Guard, has been working for more than four years in an effort to educate present Guardsmen on the retirement program and help older, retired Guardsmen and reservists file for assistance.

"We've found in so many cases that the retired Guardsman who has reached the age of 60 didn't know he had retirement benefits coming to him," Caulfield said. "And many former Guardsmen who have retired with 20 or more years service just didn't realize they could file for assistance."

CSM Caulfield said he has been working with the older Guardsmen who are now discovering they are eligible for the benefits.

There have been cases of Cotton rags sought after

in Revolution

Cotton and linen rags brought premium prices during the Revolutionary War because they were needed to make paper which had previously been imported from England.

So great was the need that one newspaper in Massachusetts, called on American housewives in 1778 to serve their country by saving for the local paper mill cotton and linen rags — be they ever so small. In New York and Philadelphia prizes were offered those who collected the largest quantities of clean white rags.

The Army needed cartridge paper for ammunition, writing paper for official orders, and printing paper for propaganda. Newspapers, too, were hard-pressed for paper. More than half of the newspapers published during the Revolutionary War were forced out of business chiefly because of the paper shortage, reports the National Cotton Council.

The general shortage continued for a time after the war, as demand soared for paper to be used in printing newspapers, books, and magazines. Old rags — yellowed and deteriorating — were pressed into use for paper-making, and this in turn required the use of strong bleaches to make acceptable though poor quality paper.

With the invention of the cotton gin, a marked improvement came about in both quantity and quality of paper in the first decades of the 19th Century. It made available new rags from cotton — the purest natural cellulose fiber — and ended the need for the harsh bleaches which had been used on the old discolored rags. Paper manufactured from cotton between 1800 and 1850 was far more durable than the wood-pulp paper that came into use at the end of the 19th Century.

An example of this was pointed out by the librarian of Congress in 1898 when he expressed concern that many collections of historical records would become useless because of the deterioration and disintegration of paper.

By way of demonstration, he exhibited a copy of the Chambersburg (Pa.) weekly which was published on rag paper in the last decade of the 18th Century. It was still in good condition, while a copy of the Chicago Tribune — published 80 years later and of far more historical value — was not.

Picker Patents Profuse Over the last century, more than 1,800 patents have been issued for mechanical cotton harvesters.

former Guardsmen reaching age 60 — some even to age 67 — that have never applied for retired pay simply because they were not familiar with the requirements, Caulfield said.

He said the basic qualifications are: 20 "good" years, age 60 and, if a member of a Reserve Component prior to August 16, 1945, to have served any time on active duty between the dates after April 5, 1917, and before November 12, 1918, after September 8, 1940, and before January 1, 1947, and after June 26, 1950 and before July 28, 1953 (active duty other than for training) and to have served the last eight years in a Reserve Component.

"Few present and retired Guardsmen realize that their retirement program draws the same benefits as active Army personnel," he said. Caulfield said those benefits include post exchange and commissary privileges and hospitalization benefits for themselves and dependents.

CSM Caulfield said there are an indeterminate number of former Guardsmen, who can qualify for the benefits, but for some reason have not.

"We provide the researching of reports to verify the individual's records and eligibility for retirement," he said.

"We are getting good results from our work for these people. Our people are beginning to see that the benefits have increased because the pay has been upgraded," he said.

The Command Sergeant Major said retirement benefits are based on grade, rate of pay and number of points. He said Guardsmen start receiving benefits at age 60, and if the Guardsman dies after receiving the benefits his dependents continue to receive 55 per cent of the total.

Avoid heads of iceberg lettuce which are very hard and which lack green color—signs of over-maturity.

"We start working with the personnel about 120 days before they turn 60 years old so they can know what benefits they will be receiving."

"We're talking about 20 or more 'good years' when we mention—the retirement benefits," he said. "A 'good year' is one in which an individual earns a minimum of 50 points per year."

He said some of the old-timers didn't know that if they served in a reserve component before July 1, 1949, the retirement program counts those years as "good time." The personnel received 50 points for each of those years to be applied toward retirement.

If anyone has any questions about whether they can receive the benefits, they can either contact their local armory or write us at the Mississippi Military Department in Jackson," Caulfield said.

For Guardsmen who served in other states before joining a Mississippi reserve unit, Caulfield said the individual needs to contact the state's military department for the same information.

CSM Caulfield indicates that a recent change in the regulation does not permit anyone from drawing more than 6 years' back pay. "Therefore, review your background and if there is a possibility, or if you just don't know, send your name, Service Number, date of birth, periods of active duty and service in the Mississippi National Guard for records review," he said.

This office maintains records of active and former members of the Mississippi National Guard only. The address: Military Department, State of Mississippi, Post Office Box 5027, APTN: CSM Caulfield, Jackson, MS 39216.

THE CHRISTMAS RUSH

Watching Congress deal with the Christmas rush is like watching Santa stuff his toy bag just before his magic ride on Christmas Eve.

There's something new in it every time you look around.

Take last week's floor activity in the House of Representatives, for example. We considered at least seven House-Senate conference reports, three major appropriations bills, and a host of other last-minute measures.

The week started off in typical Christmas fashion. We handled - and approved - the Bankruptcy Act Amendments and the Inter-American Development Bank giveaway. One was aimed at New York City; the other offered our tax dollars to underdeveloped countries in South America and Africa.

I think we've heard enough about New York City and its financial woes. A change in the bankruptcy laws of this country was the only responsible thing Congress could do - or should do - to help avert chaos in Fun City.

I voted for the Bankruptcy Act Amendments. It was a simple question of protecting New York City's essential services should the City actually default.

As for the handout for the Inter-American Development Bank, it's not really fair to call it "just another foreign aid bill." This is probably one of the better bills of its type. In fact, it's one of the few foreign aid bills that's worth talking about.

In the final analysis, though, I could not get too upset about poor and underdeveloped countries when we have continuing needs right here in the United States, in Mississippi, and in the Fifth Congressional District. Accordingly, I voted against IAD.

Other big money bills included Interior appropriations, Public Works appropriations, and Defense appropriations. Suffice it to say that we're talking about billions, not millions, of dollars.

KERSHNER'S COMMENTARY

By Dr. Howard E. Kershner

Wages and Postal Deficits

Postmaster General Benjamin Franklin Bailar is authority for the fact that the average postal worker earns over 13¢ a minute - over $8.00 an hour - just under $14,000 a year. That explains why postal rates are high and going higher. About 85 percent of the cost of our postal service is wages to the postal workers. The other 15 percent goes largely for equipment of all kinds, the cost of which is also mostly labor.

This is a good illustration of the fact that 90 percent or more of the cost of all goods and services is attributable to wages.

Anyone who complains of high prices while ignoring their direct relation to wage cost is missing the main point. The cost of mailing a letter has risen from 2¢ to 10¢ almost in direct proportion to the rise in wages for postal workers. As wages go on rising, postage rates will keep on rising. This, of course, is not only true of our postal service, but of goods and services in general.

In a free market, wages would not rise beyond the ability of the consumer to purchase the goods and services produced, but when government subsidizes both producers and services in the form of higher welfare payments, there is no check upon rising wage scales and, therefore, rising prices.

Unions force their wages up and if industry cannot pay them, it applies to Washington for a subsidy. If the consumer cannot pay for the high-priced goods, he demands and gets higher relief payments. There is, therefore, no limit to the height to which wages can rise. This condition will continue to exist until government stops subsidizing producers on the one hand and consumers on the other.

ANSWER: End all subsidies.

A Christmas Story

By J. Neil Woodruff

This is a story that I learned some time ago and when I went to recall it I couldn't recall it word for word.

But I do remember the place and time I heard it and substantially these are the things which this story told. I suppose we could call it just a Christmas story.

Many years ago in the land of Judea in the days of Herod the King there lived a little boy named Peter who helped his father care for his sheep. Peter was a happy child. He loved nothing better than to spend the long days on the hillside climbing over the hills and crags, playing in the brook, picking wild flowers.

His little pet lamb named White Face was always at his heels. Often Peter would stop and throw his arms around the lamb's neck and cry, "Oh, White Face, I do love you."

One morning Peter's father said to him, "Peter, how would you like to spend the night with the shepherds on the hillside?" Peter's eyes glistened for often he had dreamed of it but his mother had thought that little boys were better off beneath their own roofs when nightfall came. But now she only smiled.

"Watch over him carefully neighbor, wrap him up warmly, the nights are chilled upon these heights," she said.

It seemed to Peter that the day would never end. But at last the shadows began to fall. And then it was just as Peter had dreamed it. The sheep were gathered together on the hillside, a great fire was built and the flames reached upwards into the heavens. Supper was cooked over the open fire. Never had food tasted so good to Peter.

Then when the work was done the shepherds gathered around the fire place, some lying on the ground and some sitting near the fire. And soon they began to sing songs and to tell the old stories.

After a time Peter's father wrapped him warmly in a blanket and he lay where he could see the fire and hear the voices. The stars twinkled down at Peter. Never had they seemed so bright. Why, they were like a million tiny candles. And it made him think of his own small treasure and he reached into the fold of his robe to see if it was still safe. Yes, it was still there, a tiny bit of candle given to him by the priest at the temple. It was so small, the priest had said, to be of further use there.

Peter had not even told his father and mother about the gift. He was saving it for a surprise. Soon there would be a great feast day and at the end of that day Peter was planning to bring it forth and they would light it and then they could sit up late and be as bright and gay as the folks in the great house who had candles every night.

And Peter lay and thought of his treasure and he listened to the voices and then he grew drowsy and drowsier. Suddenly it seemed to him, though, as if the stars were growing brighter. Soon the whole world was as bright as day and as he looked into the very center of the light there appeared a whole host of shining angels. They were praising God and saying: Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace, good will to men. For unto you is born this day in the city of David, a Savior, which is Christ the Lord.

And this shall be a sign unto you. Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes and lying in a manger. Go ye, even now, into Bethlehem and see this thing which has come to pass. As Peter looked, the angels disappeared. The light grew less until the sky was just as it had been except for one star, far larger and brighter than the others, which remained.

Peter sat up and blinked his eyes. I must tell my father, he said. And he ran quickly to where his father lay sleeping. We must tell the others, his father said, and soon all the shepherds were talking of the wondrous things that Peter had seen and heard. Some there were who doubted. It is but a child's dream, they said, and went back to sleep again.

But Peter and his father and some of the others set out across the hills toward Bethlehem. The star that Peter had seen seemed to go before them and to point out the way. And after a time it hung over the inn and then above the stable at the back.

Surely this cannot be the place, said the oldest shepherd, but he bent down and looked inside. There through the gloom he could see the figure of a mother and there was a little baby lying in the manger. A tall man was keeping watch close by.

It is indeed the Savior, he said. Come, let us worship Him. And they all moved forward and knelt for a time before the manger. And then the oldest shepherd slipped from his shoulders, the cloak he had worn to protect his old bones from the winter's chill. Here, he said, wrap this about Him. It will help to keep Him warm. It is my gift to the Christ Child.

A younger shepherd spoke quickly and said: Here, here is my staff. It was given to me by my father. It will help to keep His footsteps safe. It is my gift to Him.

Peter looked quickly at his father, but his father shook his head. No gift, thought Peter. No gift! We have no gift for the Christ Child.

But listen. The baby's mother was speaking. I thank you for these good gifts, she was saying. I shall keep them with me always. I wish there was more light that I could see them more clearly and that I might see the better to care for the baby.

More light, thought Peter. She wants more light. Why, I have a gift for the Christ Child after all. And stepping quickly to Mary's side, he held out the little candle.

Mary looked in surprise at the boy at her side. Why thank you, lad, she said. It is the nicest gift of all. We will burn it now and enjoy its light. And we shall never forget the lad who helped make the baby's first night, bright.

Governor's weekly Summary

Parchman briefing given Governor-elect Finch

Governor Bill Waller and Governor-Elect Cliff Finch joined a large group of legislators on a tour of the Mississippi State Penitentiary at Parchman last week.

During the visit, the officials were briefed by Parchman Superintendent Jack Reed and several members of the present staff on changes that have been made there in the last two years.

The Governor cited a $10 million building program (providing the first new housing at Parchman in over fifteen years) and professionalism among the prison staff as "major improvements and accomplishments of this administration."

He added, "No state in the union has made the progress in adult corrections that we have made in the State of Mississippi... however, more changes and more innovations are needed."

Waller said that the low rate of return of inmates who are released from the Penitentiary shows "that we have made tremendous progress in rehabilitation."

The Governor said that the return rate at Parchman is approximately 30 percent while the national is over 50 percent.

Parchman Superintendent Reed praised Waller "for keeping his promise not to interfere with the administration of the Penitentiary."

Governor-Elect Finch said he is "pleased to see new approaches and ideas" at Parchman and that he will make unannounced tours of the facility during his administration.

DELINQUENCY VIEWED

The Mississippi Juvenile Justice Advisory Committee was appointed last week by Governor Waller to serve as an ad-hoc committee to the Governor's Commission on Crime and Delinquency in the area of Juvenile Justice.

Waller said the Committee was developed in compliance with the Juvenile Delinquency Act of 1974 and is composed of 21 members "representing a non-partisan, cross-section of Mississippians concerned with Juvenile Justice."

The Committee will initiate its functions with a $200,000 Law Enforcement Assistance Agency (LEAA) discretionary grant and with staff and technical assistance support from the Mississippi Criminal Justice Planning Division (MCJPD), Office of the Governor. Herbert Terry and Ellis Stuart of the MCJPD will serve as staff coordinators for the group.

Waller said the Committee will set priorities for improving Mississippi's system of juvenile justice, and it will review both State and local applications for federal funds through the MCJPD.

NAME CHANGE

The Mississippi Child Development Council, Governor's Office of Education and Training, recently became the Mississippi Council on Children by an Executive Order signed by Governor Waller. The Executive Order places the Council under the umbrella of the Governor's Office of Federal-State Programs as a free-standing agency.

DON'T LEAVE THE FARM

Governor Bill Waller has urged high school football players and their parents "to give top consideration to colleges and universities in Mississippi."

The Governor, prior to the football signing date last Saturday, said, "I hope these young people will look closely at college football prospects in Mississippi and work hard to spend their college days in our state."

Waller added, "We can ill afford to lose our talented young people to out-of-state institutions because we need their brains and their talents in Mississippi."

Waller said that nine senior colleges and fourteen junior colleges in Mississippi offer "outstanding programs and the national prestige of playing football in Mississippi is as good or better than in any state."

The Governor said, "We urge all our young people to endeavor to stay in Mississippi and use their talents to help build a better state."

BICENTENNIAL NEWS & NOTES

At one minute before midnight on New Year's Eve our historic old Liberty Bell will star in a half hour spectacular. With pomp and ceremony and with escort of the United States Army, dignitaries, and a great display of fireworks - with a parade and with tight security our famous National Symbol will be moved from Philadelphia's Independence Hall across the street to a new building on Independence Mall.

Hobart Cawood, superintendent of Independence National Historical Park, estimates thousands of persons will attend the ceremony. "Our biggest concern," Cawood said, "is to be sure we treat it gently and don't damage the crack." Plans are to sheath the bell in plastic and secure it in a bed of cement.

New home for the Liberty Bell is a million dollar building which is 105 feet tall. It is estimated as many as 14 million persons may visit the mall during 1976.

The Province of Pennsylvania paid about $300 for this bell in 1752. It weighs more than 2,000 pounds, and a printed card in the Tower Room gives its history:

"By Order of the Assembly of the Province of Pennsylvania for the State House in Philadelphia, Pass and Stow, Philadelphia, MDCCCLIII, this bell was first cast in England. It broke in ringing after its arrival and was recast in Philadelphia, from the same metal, with the same inscription, in 1753. In the adjoining yard it rang at each successive anniversary of the adoption of the Declaration until 1835. It broke on July 8, that year, while tolling during the funeral solemnities of John Marshall, Chief Justice of the United States, who died in the city."

During our bicentennial year many replicas of the Liberty Bell are in creation. The bell is featured on commemorative plates, bells of ceramics, glass, brass, pewter, and other metals, and bells of plastic are designed as souvenirs of our nation's 200th anniversary of birth. An excellent replica made of plastic and serving as a coin bank may be purchased through our own Hancock Bank. It is predicted this small bank will turn up as a collector's item during our bicentennial.

Check dairy feeds for ingredients

What's on the tag on a sack of dairy feed can mean money in the bank for you. You must know what you are looking for.

First, make sure that the three "guaranteed analysis" are up to your specifications. Most good dairy rations range from 16 to 20 percent crude protein, depending upon the quality and amount of forage fed. The crude should be a minimum of three percent and the crude fiber should not be more than eight percent.

Second, make sure the ingredients listed do not include undesirable feeds. Be on guard for such ingredients as rice mill by-products, rice hulls, ground limestone (oyster shell) and almond hulls. These are high fiber, low energy or undesirable ingredients for dairy cows.

Third, get a forage test on your silage (hay and silage) and balance your grain feeding accordingly.

WEEDS IN RYEGRASS
Dock and wild mustard are showing up in many fields of rye grass. Now is a good time to spray for control of these weeds. Use one pint of 2,4-D ester formulation per acre. The rye grass should be tilling before using 2,4-D because the chemical can damage seedling ryegrass. Weeds will be more effectively controlled if the temperature is at least 65 degrees for two or three days.

Grazing restrictions following application of 2,4-D will vary from seven to 14 days depending upon the individual herbicide manufacturer's recommendations.

PESTICIDE CERTIFICATION
The Federal Insecticide, Fungicide and Rodenticide Act (FIRA) requires that all commercial pesticide applicators be certified to work with restricted use pesticides. A commercial applicator is anyone who applies or supervises the application of pesticide for any purpose on any property other than his own for payment.

Training programs to qualify the commercial applicators for certification will begin in January at Greenville, Mississippi State University, Hattiesburg and Jackson. All study materials, training meetings and certificates will be supplied free. For more information on this training program, check with the County Agent's Office, 467-5456.

TROPICAL PLANTATION—West Indies cotton being picked over, seed milled out and trampled into bales for shipping, as depicted in 18th century French etching.

In 1607, the early colonists planted the first cotton in the New World, in what was to become Virginia. With the Industrial Revolution of the next century, and the invention of spinning machinery and the cotton gin, cotton became a major product and helped establish the United States as a commercial power.

Gold Medals Offered Home Spinners In War

A cloth scarcity in the Confederate states during the Civil War prompted some areas to offer gold medals for home spinning and weaving.

In Arkansas, a medal was awarded Mrs. Sallie Bangs of the Sulphur Springs community who made 186 yards of cotton cloth in four months. Although not in this competition, another Arkansas woman — Mrs. Martha J. Starke of Dallas County — made 384 yards of cloth in 11 months. In addition, she made two full suits for soldiers and looked after the family sewing.

Tree bark, walnut hulls, sweet gum buds, and other materials were used for dye.

Woodland owners should protect early against wildfire losses

The season of the dreaded wildfire is rapidly approaching, and Forester Michael Williams of the Mississippi Forestry Commission is urging Hancock County woodland owners to take steps to protect their timber against the destructive enemy.

"Wildfire is the foremost feared and destructive enemy of the forest," Williams said. "It strikes suddenly and unexpectedly, and in only minutes it can destroy years of timber growth and untold profits."

Protection against wildfire is essential to profitable and successful timber management, according to the County Forester, and it is simple and inexpensive to provide.

"The best and cheapest insurance against wildfire losses is a fire lane," Williams points out. "A lane six feet or wider around a timber tract usually is sufficient to secure the area from fire, and it can be constructed by simply plowing or discing. Pasture strips also make satisfactory firebreaks if kept grazed closely. These are especially useful in areas where a bare fire break might erode."

Williams also noted that old firelanes should be re-plowed or re-worked each year,

Firelane construction is a service of the Mississippi Forestry Commission, available to local landowners at a minimal cost. Anyone desiring this service should contact the County Forester's Office or the lookout tower.

Social Security notes

Benefit earnings may be higher in January

People under 72 can work, earn more and still get their social security benefits starting in January, according to Charles E. Wofford, social security district manager in Gulfport.

"In 1976 people can earn as much as $2,760 and get their full social security retirement or survivors benefit," Wofford said.

"The yearly earnings limit for 1975 was $2,520. The increase keeps the amount in line with increases in general average wages."

For earnings over $2,760 in 1976, social security benefits will be reduced by $1 for every $2 earned. "But no matter how much people earn for the year," Wofford said, "they can get their full social security benefit for any month in which they neither earn over $230 nor do substantial work in their own business." The 1975 monthly earnings limit was $210.

Different rules apply to disabled people who are getting social security disability benefits. "And people 72 and over will continue to get their full social security benefits regardless of earnings," Wofford noted.

The $2,520 figure applies to earnings for 1975. People who earn over $2,520 and get benefits must send a report on 1975 earnings to social security by April 15, 1976.

The social security contributions rate remains the same in 1976-5.85 percent of covered wages contributed by employees and employers; 7.9 percent of covered self-employed income.

The earnings and contributions base—the amount on which social security contributions are made—will be the first $15,300 of covered earnings for the year, starting in January. The 1975 base was $14,100.

Since benefit amounts are based on average earnings covered by social security, the increase in the wage base

USDA revises income guidelines from reduced lunch programs

ATLANTA, Ga. — School lunch and breakfast regulations have been amended to make more children eligible for reduced price meals in compliance with child nutrition legislation enacted by Congress last month.

The new legislation sets income eligibility for reduced price meals served through the National School Lunch and Breakfast Programs at a maximum of 95 percent above the Secretary's income poverty guidelines. For instance, children from a family of four with an income of $9,770 are now eligible for reduced price meals.

Previously, eligibility for reduced price meals was set at a maximum of 75 percent above the national guidelines — $8,770 for a family of four. Reduced price benefits also apply to the Child Care Food Program for children in day care.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture's regulation change also requires participating schools to serve reduced price meals to eligible children. Previously, schools had the option of choosing whether or not to offer reduced price meals. Reduced price lunches sell for a maximum of 20 cents, and reduced price breakfasts sell for a maximum of 10 cents.

One horsepower is equal to the raising of 33,000 pounds one foot in one minute.

REVISED INCOME POVERTY GUIDELINES FISCAL YEAR 1976

(USDA's income poverty guidelines are higher for Alaska, Hawaii, and Guam because of higher living costs in those areas.)

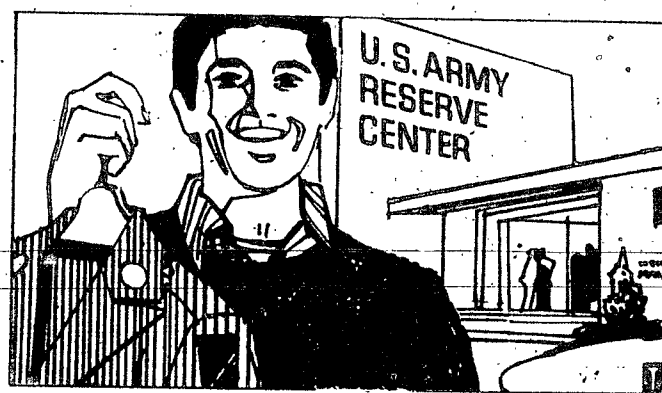

Family Size	Guidelines Fiscal Year 1976	Guidelines when increased by 25 percent	95 percent
1	2,580	3,230	5,040
2	3,390	4,240	6,620
3	4,200	5,250	8,200
4	5,010	6,260	9,770
5	5,750	7,190	11,210
6	6,490	8,110	12,650
7	7,160	8,950	13,970
8	7,830	9,790	15,280
9	8,440	10,550	16,460
10	9,050	11,310	17,640
11	9,650	12,060	18,820
12	10,250	12,810	20,000

While the level of income a family may have to be eligible for reduced price meals has been increased, income requirements for free meals remain the same. States set their own levels of income eligibility for free meals based on the Secretary's income poverty guidelines. States may go above the Secretary's guidelines by a maximum of 25 percent for free meals but not below. For instance, the Secretary's guides set $5,010 as the level of eligibility for a family of four. States may increase that figure by a maximum of 25 percent to $6,260 for a family of four.

Holes, like these shown, are spread from one side of the street to the other and are deep enough to cause serious damage, not to mention discomfort, to any motorist. The piece of road lies in Beat Two.

R & D creates office for black development

Leslie G. Range has been named manager of the R&D Center's newly established Office for Black Economic Development. Range, who came to the Center in 1973, was formerly assigned to the Special Projects Office, where he served as a consultant in community and economic development to ethnic minority officials.

The creation of an Office for Black Economic Development (OBED) came after the Center's review of income data showed that black Mississippians have not shared adequately in the economic gains made by the state over the past several years. Although an estimated 5,000 additional jobs for blacks have been developed through previous Center programs, black income continues to lag behind the rate needed to achieve a per capita income goal for Mississippians at least matching the national average by 1992.

To accelerate income gains among black Mississippians, Range and a fulltime staff in the new office will plan and coordinate a program of work designed to expand existing black-owned businesses, create additional black-owned businesses, and upgrade the skills of unemployed and underemployed blacks. The Center's other divisions will continue to carry out most of the research and development activities on behalf of black industries, black workforces, and black communities.

"The R&D Center has had 10 years experience in job, industrial, and community development," said Range. "What OBED intends to do as part of the Center's operation is to match these extensive resources to the needs of the underdeveloped black people and communities of this state."

A graduate of Northeastern University, Boston, Massachusetts, Range also completed a special training program for blacks at the Boston University School of Human Relations. His work experience in Boston includes three years as a staff reporter on The Christian Science Monitor, service as an urban affairs consultant to the Northeast Region of the YMCA, and employment as vocational education consultant for the Boston Model Cities Administration.

Range is chairman of the board of directors of Mound Bayou Cycle Products, Inc., as well as founder and former board member of Delta Housing Development Corporation, Indianola.

NEWS FOR WOMEN

FLYGALS

If learning a creative skill that can stand you in good stead both for business and pleasure appeals to you, maybe you're one of the women who could make a superb pilot.

In 1929, only 117 women were licensed pilots. Today, there are over 37,000, including 5,000 who are flight instructors. Some women pilots are even flying for the Navy and the airlines.

A woman who wants to join these ranks can learn to fly easily in a Piper Cherokee, known for its responsiveness and easy handling. Piper Elite Centers offer a curriculum that lets a woman proceed at her own pace. There's an exclusive audio-visual program that lets her see and study on the ground what she'll be practicing in the air.

It doesn't take muscles to fly, but rather a spirit of independence, native intelligence, and the desire to meet and conquer a creative challenge.

And on any one of those points, a woman is at least equal to a man.

Discarded household items remake into bird feeders

What have old coat hangers, hubcaps, wooden salad bowls, hardware cloth and onion bags got to do with birdwatching?

Such discarded household items — if properly fashioned into feeding stations — may help you attract hundreds of colorful birds to your backyard this winter, according to the current (December-January) issue of NATIONAL WILDLIFE magazine.

George H. Harrison, field editor of the National Wildlife Federation publication, reports that with a dozen homemade feeders and a recirculating pool of water he has lured as many as 20 different species and more than 100 birds at a time to the backyard of his Wisconsin home.

By placing his feeders at the right locations and stocking them with the proper food, Harrison has hosted and photographed such specimens as downy, hairy, and redheaded woodpeckers, brown creepers, crossbills, purple finches, and redpolls.

Suet feeders are the key to attracting some birds that the average householder rarely sees. They can be made from old coat hangers, pulled into a "diamond" shape, from onion bags, or from hardware cloth formed into a cylinder shape, with a plastic coffee can lid at the bottom to hold the tallow.

Most birds eat beef suet, according to Harrison's report, but the white tallow in hanging feeders attract some insect-eating birds, such as woodpeckers, which are not interested in seeds.

Harrison also reports that if you "regard some species as pests, you can discourage English sparrows, blackbirds, grackles, starlings, and cowbirds by feeding only sunflower seeds." The problem is this will also discourage juncos and mourning doves. The "undesirable species prefer cracked corn, so if you buy a birdseed mixture that contains no cracked corn, you can tread the middle course," Harrison says. But "if you want to zero in on finches, nuthatches, chickadees, grosbeaks, redpolls and crossbills, stick to 100 percent sunflower seeds."

With his homemade feeders costing nothing, Harrison says his greatest expense is the seed he buys. But he has cut down his seed bill by shopping around for bargains and buying it in 50-pound bags.

Apartment dwellers, as well as home owners, can maintain feeding stations, the NATIONAL WILDLIFE article says. But the "ideal setup" is still a backyard patio station, with feeders at different levels and surrounded by trees and shrubs.

Harrison, who stocks some of his feeders in the summer as well as winter, is apparently not discouraged by raids on his station by other animals. In addition to squirrels, he has observed cotton-tail rabbits, raccoons and opossums at his ground feeders. Remarkably, he is even tolerant of a pair of chipmunks that carried 100 pounds of wild bird mixture to their underground home last fall.

Homemade bird feeder

A set of coat hangers pulled into a diamond shape and wired together at the top and bottom offers suet to woodpeckers and other insect-eating birds throughout the winter.

Food stamp hours announced

Food stamps will not be issued after 11 a.m., Wednesday, Dec. 24, until after the Christmas holiday, according to Mrs. Lucretia Fly, director, Hancock County Welfare Department.

Mrs. Fly said the food stamp office will remain closed until 9 a.m., Monday, Dec. 29. The office is located in the Agricultural Building on Necaise Avenue, Bay St. Louis.

keeping you in touch

By F. M. Kyle, Jr.
Gulf Coast District Manager

No businessman likes to raise prices. But there are times, in all businesses, when price increases are unavoidable. In South Central Bell, we've gone without a general rate increase for two years — a period during which almost everything else increased in price. But, while our prices remained stable, the costs of providing good telephone service continued to rise.

Among the effects inflation has had upon us are higher costs for the goods and services we buy, for the wages we pay and higher costs for the money we must raise to finance new and improved telephone facilities.

We have only one source for dollars to cover the costs of continuing to provide telephone service. These dollars can only come from the charges we make for service. When costs of furnishing service rise and existing charges are too low to cover them, our only alternative is to increase charges. That, very simply, is why we had to ask for higher telephone rates. Although rates for long distance calls within Mississippi have increased, we have introduced two features that give you more control over your long distance costs:

1. A new one minute minimum rate for all One-plus dialed calls.
2. New discounts off the weekday 8 a.m. — 5 p.m. One-plus dialed rate. The new discount rates apply as follows:
 - 35% DISCOUNT — EVENINGS: Dial the One-plus way between 5 p.m. and 11 p.m. Sunday through Friday, and you get a 35% discount.
 - 60% DISCOUNT — NIGHTS: Dial the One-plus way between 11 p.m. any night and 8 a.m. the next morning and you get a 60% discount.
 - 60% DISCOUNT — WEEKENDS: Dial the One-plus way between 11 p.m. Friday night, all day Saturday, and Sunday until 5 p.m., and you get a 60% discount.

These discounts do not apply to charges for the first three minutes on person-to-person and operator handled calls. However, these discounts do apply to charges for additional minutes on all calls.

Save money by remembering: One-plus dialing is always the cheapest way to call anytime. But to save the most, use One-plus dialing and call either on Sunday through Friday between 11 p.m. and 8 a.m., or on weekends from 11 p.m. Friday, all day Saturday, and until 5 p.m. Sunday.

If you'd like more information on any of our new charges, I hope you'll call me.

The marriage of Mrs. Effie Yarbrough to Clarence "Hickey" Schwartz will be solemnized Wednesday, Dec. 24 at 3 p.m. in Chink & Ruth's Lounge in Lakeshore. Relatives and friends are invited to attend through this medium.

Party marks first birthday

Danny Strong celebrated his first birthday with a party Sunday at the home of his parents Mr. and Mrs. Donald Strong.

Winnie the Pooh theme was used in the decorations and on the birthday cake.

Joining in the celebration were Danny's brother Donnie and sisters Dee Dee and Debbie, Wendy and Lisa Cameron, Aimee Arnold, Robert Laughlin, Chuck, Renee and Leslie Hirstius, his grandmothers Mrs. Edna Vassalli and Mrs. Anna Mae Strong; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Egloff, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hirstius, Mrs. J. T. McCaleb Jr., Mrs. Al Arnold, Bay St. Louis; Mrs. Larry Cameron, Gulfport, and Stephen Wolfe, and Mrs. Eddie Fiers of Chalmette, La.

Coming Events

The Charismatic Prayer Group will meet at 7:30 p.m. tonight in St. Augustine Seminary cafeteria.

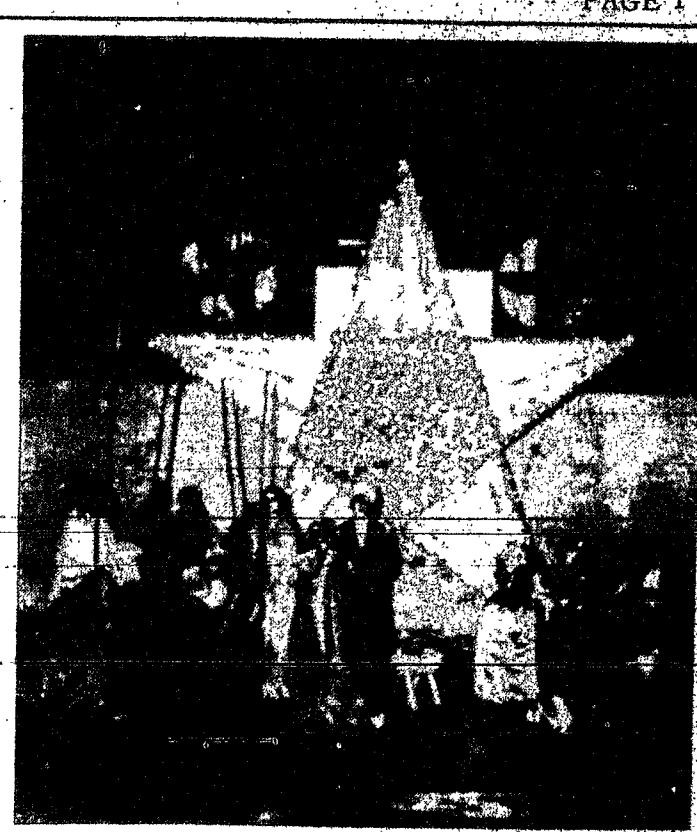

The L.W.M.L. Ladies Circle of Lutheran Church of the Pines will hold its Christmas party at 7 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 18, at the home of Mrs. Fred Langbein.

Lutheran Church of the Pines Sunday School will present a Christmas pageant at 7 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 21 at the Church.

Gulfview stages Christmas pageant

Lisa Carr and Lyonie Ladner portrayed the roles of Mary and Joseph, respectively, last Thursday when Gulfview Elementary School staged their annual Christmas pageant.

Other special credits went to Mrs. Ferguson and the school's Home Economics Department for production of the choir robes and to the art students for the making of required scenery.

Music for the event was provided by Mrs. Curtis Thaxton on the piano, and Marcel LaNasa on violin. Special music, "What Child is This?" was by Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Thaxton, and "O Holy Night" was rendered by Bob Hubbard.

Others in the cast included: Ricky Curet, Jan Duplantis, and Dennis Paulk, shepherds; Kevin Fricke, Garland James, and Greg LaFontaine, kings; Mary Moran, angel.

Narration was performed by Karen Powell, the choirs were selected from grades one through four, and grades five through eight.

Kirk Ladner sang a solo, Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer; Gene Davis, Michael Duplantis, Donald Graham, Gwen Ladner, and Chris Pierce, performed "O Christmas" and "Mum bah yah," on the song flutes, and a duet, "Away in a Manger," was sung by Melissa Damiens, and Michele Thaxton.

Mr. Santa Claus was listed as being "among the special guests."

Miss Romagossa feted with bridal shower

Miss Cynthia Romagossa was given a bridal shower Sunday, Dec. 14 at the summer home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Romagossa Jr., Magnolia Drive, Delisle.

The bride-to-be was presented a white cysanthemum corsage decorated with miniature wedding rings by the hostesses Mrs. Mae Carver, aunt of the honoree, and cousins Miss Patricia Gail Lee and Mrs. Renita Renee Rachuba.

Refreshments were the traditional wedding cake decorated with wedding bells, punch, and coffee.

Out of town guests included Mrs. Vicky Necaise, Mrs. Lee Peterson, Mrs. Trudy Adcock and daughter, Janet, all of Gulfport. Special guests were the parents of the bride-elect and of the groom-to-be, Mr. and Mrs. Romagossa and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Gamilla, all of New Orleans.

A late report - The kids are ready for Christmas

Decorating a tree

Many hands light work do make, at least when it comes to making ornaments and tree decorations. Involved in decorating tree in third grade room of Mrs. Lyn Parrish

Bongo, Bongo section

Bongo section raps out "Little Drummer Boy" during Christmas pageant rehearsals in First Grade of Waveland

SONG FLUTE TRIO - Christmas music is rendered by Charles B. Murphy Elementary School trio during rehearsal for school's Christmas pageant this week. Musicians on flutes are, from left, Sandy Reynolds, Paula Gaudin, and John Bosarge.

BERRY AND THE BEAR - is title of book being read to class by Charles Williams, student in Mrs. Jannle Ryan's third grade class at North Bay Elementary

THIS TERRIBLE BUSINESS OF PICTURES - is something Ryan Ladner of St. Clare's Kindergarten is not prepared to discuss - calendar board inside classroom is still lagging at 16 when picture was shot instead of the magical number of 25, much preferred by young Ryan and his classmates.

CHRISTMAS DRAWS CLOSER - at St. Rose de Lima School and these members of third grade show Christmas story folders made by their teachers Mrs. Lionel Bradley and Mrs.

Alfred Robertson now in process of being filled. Enrolled at prospects ahead to holidays are, from left, Trent Tate, Thyra Labat, Jonique Ferre, and Dexter Bell.

Organ recital

pageant on Monday. Both girls played organ and later joined in Spanish language mathematics class. Room teacher is Mrs. William Gaudet.

Fishy business

Hancock Elementary students stage Christmas pageant with enthusiasm

The fourth grade at Hancock North Central Elementary School, staged their annual Christmas pageant last week to an enthusiastic house of preparatory grade school students.

The play, in several acts, was coordinated by Miss Barbara Bryant, Miss Shirley Shaw, and Mrs. Alfreda Ladner. Henry Gustine, music director, held baton over the Hancock North Central Elementary School Band and the fourth grade chorus.

Production cast was comprised of: Christmas sprites, Joanne Bourgeois, Tangela Lee, Karen Seal, Nancy Stickland, Pamela Ladner, Danita Ladner, Renee Skogen, Lynette Ladner, Paulette Necaise, and Lexie Stephenson; Angels: Katria Ladner, Anette Ladner, and Frankie Jean Ladner; shepherds: Chris Everett and Therman Ladner; kings: Brandon Malley, Daren Peterson, and Dwayne Malley. Mary was played by Mia Mitchell, and Joseph by Daryn Hoda.

Also on stage were Santa Claus-Garzin Mauffray;

CYO carolers sing for St. Jude

Members of the Catholic Youth Organization, Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church, yesterday began caroling on behalf of St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital in Memphis.

Entertainment personality Danny Thomas, who founded the hospital, said recently that all the money collected by the young people this Christmas will aid in the institution's war against disease.

The hospital is one of the nation's focal points in childhood illness research, including its special emphasis on cancer. As an example, major hospitals throughout the nation are now utilizing treatments for lymphocytic leukemia pioneered by St. Jude's.

The CYO group will continue their door-to-door effort through Christmas Eve and ask that donations for the hospital be as generous as circumstance will permit.

OLG News

Our Lady of the Gulf students, Kindergarten through sixth grade, held their Christmas program Wednesday in the school cafeteria.

Mass for OLG students, first through sixth grade, will be at 8:30 a.m. Friday, Dec. 19, in Our Lady of the Gulf Church. A Christmas party will follow at the school.

Classes will be dismissed for the holidays at 11 a.m. and will resume Jan. 5.

MUSIC SECTION was provided by Marcel LaNasa of Waveland, music instructor for county schools at Lakeshore and Pearlington, during Christmas pageant rehearsal at Charles B. Murphy this week.

Choir for event was eager and hardest chore faced by LaNasa was to prevent singers from starting ahead of the music.

Estapa is candidate

Bert E. Estapa Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Estapa of 339 St. John Street, Bay St. Louis, is a candidate for a B.A. degree in marketing from Southeastern Louisiana University during winter commencement exercises Dec. 20.

Commencement speaker will be Chancellor Paul W. Murrill of Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge.

Bayside volunteers to distribute toys

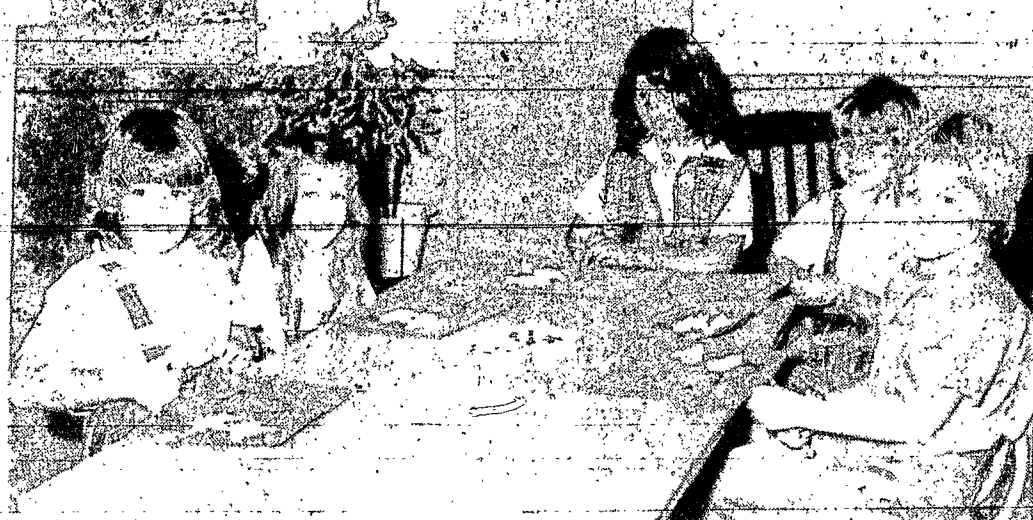

The Bayside Park Volunteer Fire Department and Ladies Auxiliary will conduct a Christmas parade beginning at 1 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 20 from St. Ann's Church to Bayside Park, followed by distribution of Christmas toys to needy children at the Civic Association Building in the park.

Drawing winner

announced by VFW

Vernon Ramond of 300 Washington Street was the winner of the "Buggy or Boogie" given by the ladies auxiliary of Bayside Park Volunteer Fire Department last Sunday, Dec. 14.

Drawing for the gift was held at Don's Place on Highway 90, Bay St. Louis.

Work table enterprise

Students of St. Clare's Kindergarten in Waveland busily cut out Christmas tree decorations for their homes. Paste-ups were made under guidance of Mrs. Ann Shippey and Mrs. Juanita Loup, who handled most of tinsel sprinkling (or sweeping up) chores. Working with scissors are, from left, Michelle Peterson, Missy Thornton, Dimi Petratos, Catherine Bernadette, and Buddy Bourn, III.

Some straight talk about the natural gas shortage

from United Gas Pipe Line Company

Dear Fellow Citizen:

All of us these days are only too conscious of the energy problems that affect our Nation. We at United Gas Pipe Line Company are using this forum to give you our view of the natural gas shortage in Mississippi and the rest of the country.

At United we are deeply interested in Mississippi. United is one of the major interstate gas pipe line companies which deliver gas for use in Mississippi. United is a major pipe line supplier of gas to Mississippi Valley Gas Co., Wilmut-Gas & Oil Co., Entex, and many other gas distribution companies (including municipal systems), and to industrial and power plant users throughout the state. United also sells gas to other distribution and industrial companies in its service area in the Gulf South, and indirectly, through connections with other pipe line companies, to users in other parts of the eastern half of the United States.

The natural gas shortage is the result of the Nation's having used this depletable resource for several years at a far faster rate than gas producing companies have been adding new reserves. The decline in this available supply has now reached the point that the possibility of temporary plant closings and other severe dislocations in some parts of the country this winter cannot be ignored.

Fortunately, we do not expect any such severe results in Mississippi or other parts of United's direct service area in the Gulf South this winter. But the problem is serious enough, and the future is uncertain enough, that everyone should devote some attention to learning about the situation and to considering ways that we all can make a contribution to the solution of the problem.

To aid in this effort, we will present a series of messages discussing the natural gas shortage and describing ways you can help. We also will give you a report on United's efforts to overcome the effects of the shortage and our best estimates of how much gas will be available in the future.

United's pipe line system is located in a Gulf South region encompassing portions of Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, southern Alabama, and northwest Florida. To keep the people in our service areas informed about United's gas supply-demand picture and its curtailment program this winter, we will try to localize the messages as much as possible and practical. In most instances, the messages can be almost identical. The principal messages will be the same: THERE'S A BIG JOB TO BE DONE — CONSERVE NATURAL GAS.

The Need for Conservation

A program of conservation in which everyone can participate is an important first step in overcoming the impact of the shortage.

United, like all other interstate pipe line companies, delivers gas to customers in accordance with a system of priorities ordered by the Federal Power Commission. The highest priority is for direct use in homes, schools, hospitals and commercial establishments. The next priority is direct use of gas in industry as a raw material, so-called feedstock or process gas. The last category is for other industrial use of gas for both small and large users, with minimum levels established so that small users are the last affected.

United expects to have sufficient supply available this winter to meet all of the needs of the first two categories and to provide some quantity of gas to all industrial users in United's service area. As in past years, however, there will be substantial curtailment of larger industrial users, and curtailments will increase somewhat over last year. Moreover, in the event of a severely cold winter which substantially increases the heating load requirement, or in the event of severe storms or other disasters which interfere with the collection of gas supply from the fields for an extended period, the possibility exists that still deeper curtailments would be required.

In short, while national predictions are that this winter some other parts of the country will be more severely affected by the natural gas shortage than will Mississippi and other states in United's service area, curtailments will nevertheless be deep in Mississippi and we must all do everything we can to reduce the impact of the shortage.

An important point to remember: to the extent the use of gas in the homes and commercial establishments is reduced through conservation, more gas will be available for industry. Conservation will protect jobs for people and strengthen the economy in Mississippi and the Gulf South. We will all benefit from our collective action of turning down our thermostats and improving the insulation in our homes and offices.

As the fall and winter seasons progress, we will keep you advised of the situation as it develops. We will also report in some detail on what United is doing to try to overcome the problem. But let me give you here a thumbnail sketch of our efforts underway at this time to bring gas to United's customers in Mississippi.

United Serves Mississippi and the Gulf South

Mississippi is one of United's largest markets. Last winter, United delivered 37 billion cubic feet of gas for consumption in Mississippi, which is the same in energy value as about 270 million gallons of oil.

This winter our supply is reduced somewhat, but we nevertheless expect to deliver 32 billion cubic feet of gas to customers in Mississippi. This means that Mississippi and United have a tremendous stake in the development of new gas reserves, and United is making major efforts to improve our gas supply for the future.

Efforts to Improve Gas Supply

United has historically been a major purchaser of gas in the field for transportation and resale. In recent years a substantial and growing part of United's gas supply has come from federal waters in the Gulf of Mexico, the area which is expected more than any other to provide new gas reserves in the next few years. We are making every effort to enlarge the supplies of gas purchased by United from producers in the Gulf of Mexico. This benefits our customers in Mississippi and elsewhere.

The Importance of Working Together

United is a major operator in the Gulf of Mexico, bringing significant quantities of gas from outside Mississippi into the State for delivery to customers in Mississippi.

The importance of this is emphasized by the development of gas reserves now underway in the Gulf of Mexico. Of the gas United is able to obtain in the Gulf, significant portions will be delivered for use in Mississippi. United is making great efforts to attach these new supplies, but the help and cooperation of everyone in the Gulf South is vital.

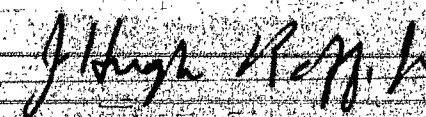

For the benefit of all, old accusations and old quarrels must be put aside. We must all work together constructively to overcome the shortage and thus best serve Mississippi and the Gulf South.

There is a Big Job to be Done

This is the first in a series of United Gas public information messages to Gulf South citizens. In these messages, we will be encouraging conservation. We will also be asking for understanding of the problem and for the help and cooperation of civic and political leaders. Future messages will report on the extensive measures the company is taking to combat this crisis: the search for new gas supplies, the construction of new offshore lines, and other developments which bear upon the availability of natural gas.

Much has been said about the natural gas shortage. Much right and much wrong. It is characteristic of constructive Americans that we argue and even quarrel among ourselves until finally, faced with the full understanding of the problem confronting us, we close ranks and devote our strengths and wisdom to its solution. We believe such a time is now. There is a big job to be done.

Sincerely,

J. HUGH ROOFF, JR.

Pocket Problems Solved
Pockets are convenient resting places for pens and pencils, tools and instruments, assorted paraphernalia and hands dirtied by everything from crank case oil to spaghetti sauce. Things that leave their grimy mark in these wonderfully convenient catch-alls. Pockets just seem to know how to attract tough soil and stains.

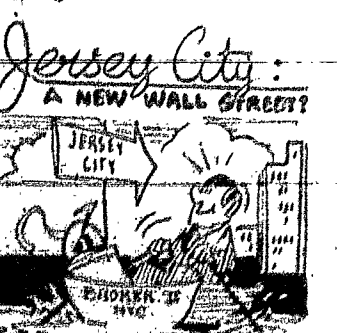

To deal with pocket grime, follow this simple guide:

*Before washing garments, make sure all pockets have been emptied. Certain common pocket residue can turn into difficult stains if allowed to go through the wash cycle.

*Pretreat noticeably dirty areas with Spray 'n' Wash laundry soil and stain remover. Just spray it directly on grimy areas of pockets (any other extra dirty parts of the garment, too) and wait 60 seconds. Then add pocketed items to rest of laundry and wash as usual.

*Whenever possible, turn pockets inside out so that the most used surfaces get maximum exposure to cleaning efforts.

With a little laundering know-how, your pockets and clothes can keep looking neat, clean and attractive... so you can feel good wearing them.

KRIS KRINGLE WREATHS

3 tablespoons regular margarine or butter
1/2 cup light corn syrup
3 tablespoons sugar

1/2 teaspoon green food coloring
3/4 cups corn flakes
Red cinnamon candies

1. Measure margarine, corn syrup, sugar and food coloring into medium-size saucepan. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until sugar dissolves and mixture boils. Boil 3 minutes, stirring frequently. Remove from heat. Add corn flakes. Stir until well coated.

2. Using well-buttered 1/4 cup dry measure, immediately portion all of mixture onto waxed paper or buttered baking sheet. With buttered fingers, quickly shape each portion to resemble a wreath. Decorate with cinnamon candies. Let stand until firm before serving.

Yield: about 1 dozen Kris Kringle Wreaths

Stubborn Rocks fall 58-49

Bay survives Stanislaus ambush for 10th win

The Bay St. Louis Tigers survived a cold first half and then rode a strong fourth period to record a 58-49 win over stubborn St. Stanislaus Tuesday night in the Tiger Dome. The win upped the Tigers' season record to 10-1 for third year head coach Mike Necaise, a former standout himself, for the Tigers.

The Rockchaws battled the Tigers evenly throughout the first three periods of play, in what was a spirited though low scoring contest. Both teams were cold from the field, with Stanislaus taking a slim 13-10 lead in the first period, mostly on the play of standout guard Duane Smith. Both teams continued their dry spell from the floor until the end of the first half, though the Tigers did manage to pull even at 24-24 on a basket by sophomore Mike Thompson with 22 seconds remaining in the half.

The Bay hit on only 10 of 38 field goals in the first half for 26 percent.

In the third period the Tigers jumped to an early 30-26 lead on two quick baskets by guard Allison Farve and Thompson, but the brief lead quickly vanished on baskets by the Rocks Albert Labat and Ralph Trisotto.

The Tigers took a 38-37 lead at the end of the third period of play on a basket by senior forward Tom Barrett, who played a few minutes on a foot that has only recently come out of a cast.

The Tigers came alive in the fourth period, taking a quick 46-37 lead on two free throws by Paul Saucier, two baskets by Thompson, and a tip in by Barrett.

The Bay later jumped to its biggest lead of the game with 2:50 to play on a basket by A. Farve for a 55-43 lead. Stanislaus came back with two baskets by Labat and Smith but could come no closer as the Tigers ran out the clock for a 58-49 win.

Louis Smith led the Tiger cause with 16 points, followed by Farve with 13, and sophomore Thompson with 11. Duane Smith led all scorers with 19 points for St. Stanislaus. Labat added 15.

"We were terribly cold from the floor in the first half," Necaise said after the game, adding "we were just lucky they weren't shooting much better or they would have blown us away."

"Sophomore Mike Thompson probably had his best individual effort of the year," Necaise added.

In two preliminary games, the Boys B-team defeated Biloxi 44-18 to increase their season record to 5-1. Roy Shubert led the Tigers with 11 points.

In the girls varsity, the Tigerettes lost a hard fought game with Biloxi 41-47 after battling evenly with the Rebelettes for three periods. Andrea Favre led the Tiger girls with 12 points followed by Ginger Maurigi with 8 and Cleo Hawkins with 6. Anita Madden led Biloxi with 17.

The Tigers will remain idle two weeks for Christmas vacation returning to action Jan. 1 against Vancleave in the Biloxi Tri-County Tournament at Biloxi.

All Conference players named from West schools

Selections to the Gulf Coast All Conference team from the Western Conference were named recently.

Those players named for the fifth and sixth grade division were Steve Lacoste and Kyle Haas from Annunciation School, Kevin Lichtenstein and Shane Anderson from C.B. Murphy, Walter Ross and Pat Kergosien from Our Lady of the Gulf, Charles Moss and Steve Klein from St. Clare, and Sean Logan, Brian Scarborough, and William Floyd from St. Paul.

Players named to the seventh and eighth grade division were Johnny Jackson, Philip Lichtenstein, Chuck Benigno, Floyd Willis, and Scott Anderson from C.B. Murphy and Steve Sable, Clark Quave, Kevin Mederos, Dean Westbrook, and Cyrus Smith from Pearl River Central School.

Rebel cagers face USM in recess opener

UNIVERSITY, Miss.,—After struggling from behind in each of the last two games to take the lead only to lose in the end, Ole Miss hopes to get off on the right foot Thursday night against Southern Mississippi in Jackson.

Tipoff time is 7:30 p.m. in the Mississippi Coliseum. The two schools have never met in Jackson during the 11-game series, which Ole Miss leads 10 to one.

For the Johnny Rebs, it will be their first game in 10 days, semester examinations dictating the inactivity.

After Thursday, Ole Miss continues on the road to New Orleans for a Saturday night date with Tulane.

Coach Robert "Cob" Jarvis' Rebels are 3-2 on the season, winning their first three and dropping their most recent contests.

Texas was victorious 67-65 in Austin and Texas Tech won here 57-51 on Dec. 8 in the two setbacks.

And if Jarvis has his way, his team will break from the gate better this week than they did against their Southwest Conference foes.

Jarvis indicated Tuesday he would stick with four of the starters he has utilized most recently for the Southern game.

That means a front line of 6-6 1/2 junior Walter Actwood, 6-6 1/2 junior Eugene Harris and 6-7 freshman Ronnie Davis and wingman John Phillips, a 6-6 1/2 junior.

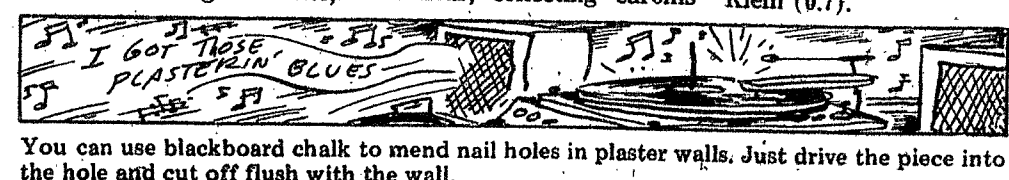

But at the point guard slot, the Rebel coach is undecided between 6-1 junior Jim Varner and 6-0 frosh Henry Jackson. Actwood leads the team in scoring, one of four Rebs hitting in double figures. The Greenville youngster is averaging 13.2 points a game. Harris is closing in at 12.8, followed by Phillips at 11.7 and Davis at 10.6. Both Varner and Jackson have played in the five games to date, Varner showing a 3.0 scoring norm and Jackson at 2.8.

Actwood also leads in rebounds, collecting caroms at a 13.0 clip, Harris ranks second at 10.8.

Other team members likely to see action against Southern and Tulane are forwards Harvey Murray (8.0) and Herb Wright (5.4); guards Joe Kyles (8.4) and Elijah Emanuel (3.7) and center Jeff Klein (0.7).

Charlie shucks underdog role, bests Lucky Red Patch

(Special to The Echo) PEARL RIVER, La. — Charlie, owned and trained by Delbert Cuevas of Hancock County, won again Sunday at Oak Downs, and the victory came in the role of underdog.

Charlie beat favored Lucky Red Patch in the six-furlong second race.

Another Hancock County horse, Haleigh's Comet, returned to the winner's circle after suffering defeat two weeks ago for the first time in a couple of months.

Haleigh's Comet, owned by Andy and Clyde Moran and trained by Clyde Moran, posted a Class A time of 18.62 seconds in winning the $50-yard seventh race against Van Fel Mike (18.75), owned and trained by James Watson of Bay St. Louis.

Ralph Shubert and Charlie Silkwood, the track's top two jockeys, kept their 1975 pace Sunday.

Shubert, who already has wrapped up the riding crown, booked home four winners on the 15-race program to increase his season total to 154 victories.

Silkwood, who holds down second place, had three victories to up his winner's circle trips to 103.

Shubert also won the riding championship for the 1974 season.

And with only two Sundays of racing remaining this year, Merlin Marechal has captured the title as leading trainer. Marechal has saddled 135 winners.

Trailing Marechal in the trainer standings are Red Crowe, 30 firsts; Edward Patton, 29; Delbert Cuevas

(28) and Larry Favre (26). Patton, Cuevas and Favre are from Hancock County.

Sunday's results:

1) 3 furlongs, Mr. W.H., 39.09 seconds, Red Crowe, owner and trainer; Glenn Spiebler, jockey. Rocky Harris, 39.42, La Cleave, 39.77.

VCI Semi-Pro Tournament set for Dec. 20-21 in Bay

The second annual Valena C. Jones Semi-Pro Basketball Tournament has been set for pre-Christmas this Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 20-21, with the final games of the double elimination event scheduled for the following weekend, Dec. 27-28.

Coach Willie Bradley, coordinator, announced the event Tuesday, saying trophies would be awarded to the first through eighth place teams.

In addition, we will present 25 All-Tournament plaques and plaques to the most valuable player, the leading scorer, and the player judged to possess the best sportsmanlike attitude.

Bradley said admission will be 50 cents for students and $1 for adults, with two sessions set for each day. Proceeds from the event will go to the sponsoring organization, the Valena C. Jones Methodist Church.

The tournament will feature outstanding college stars from such institutions as Mississippi State University, University of Southern Mississippi, Jackson State University, Mississippi Valley State, Delta State University, Grambling University, Tulane University, Southern University of New Orleans, Southern University of Baton Rouge, University of New Orleans, and Xavier University of New Orleans," Bradley said.

Bradley gave the following times and game numbers for initial rounds, with all games scheduled for the Valena C. Jones gymnasium:

Game 1, 10 a.m., Afro Bullets vs. Pass Christian All Stars; Game 2, 11:30 a.m., Abeta Springs All Stars vs. Desire Community All Stars; Game 3, 1 p.m., New Orleans

Family Affair vs. New Orleans Something Special; Game 4, 2:30 p.m., New Orleans Flyers vs. Picayune All Stars; Game 5, 4 p.m., Covington All Stars vs. Lucedale All Stars; Game 6, 5:30 p.m., Bay St. Louis College All Stars vs. ILA Bruins of Gulfport; Game 7, 7 p.m., St. Bernard All Stars vs. North Gulfport Gunners; Game 8, 8:30 p.m., New Orleans Gumbo vs. Poplarville All Stars.

dead shrimp. They are being gotten off the seafloor at both ends, in Pearl River and adjacent tributaries.

It's uncanny how many folks one meets on each fishing trip. Mr. and Mrs. Lee Lindley are visiting Mrs. Lindley's mother, Mrs. Richard Antoy, a sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. E.J. Livaudou and niece, Miss Nancy Cuevas, all of Bay St. Louis. The Lindleys are down from Federal Way, Washington. Don't know how many fish they caught but met a lot of friends.

SPORTSMAN OF THE WEEK—Junior Breath is one of our real fishermen and boatmen. Junior has been fishing hereabout for many years. Known for his sailing abilities, he owns a big sail boat which he shares with his friends. Still sails and fishes—not too old for that.

For you fishermen who want to catch both fresh and salt water fish go to La France's camp at Ansley or Campbell's Bayou. Arnold Love or Linda will take care of your fishing needs. Three Oak Bayou is nearby. A good place to catch speckles. The bayous there are another place to catch bass.

Did you know that at Salt Bayou over by Sidell has mighty good bass fishing the year round. There is a launching ramp at Sam's Place next to the Hi-Way bridge.

Heard Dudley Heiliger's program Sunday. Seems like we are catching more fish down this way than at Biloxi and Gulfport, according to Dudley. Better come over and fish with us.

Horace Farr and Brother Perri got about 4 dozen crabs last week out front. Shows that some must be around.

It has not been determined whether fish are color blind or not, if you are certain let me know. I was pulled over the coals because I said action of baits attract more fish than color.

Rebels announce '76 grid schedule

UNIVERSITY, Miss., — An 11-game football schedule, featuring seven games with Southeastern Conference members, was announced for the University of Mississippi Saturday by Athletic Director John H. Vaught.

The 1976 slate carries only five home dates but there is far better balance in playing sites when compared with the 1975 schedule.

The SEC games are with Alabama, Georgia, Vanderbilt, LSU, Tennessee and Mississippi State, the 1975 opponents, plus Auburn for the first time since 1973. Coach Ken Cooper's team posted a 5-1 record to tie for second place in '75 SEC standings.

Memphis State and Auburn replace Baylor and Texas A&M on the 1976 schedule. And in their earliest opening game in history, the Rebels get started with MSU's Tigers in Memphis the night of Sept. 4.

A schedule feature is the Sept. 25 game in Hattiesburg with Southern Mississippi, when the Rebels and Eagles will formally dedicate Southern's new 36,000 arena, to be known as the M.M. Roberts Stadium. Additional September action sends Ole Miss against Alabama in Jackson Sept. 11 and Tulane here, in Hemingway Stadium Sept. 18. The September schedule contrasts with the first four games played a year ago, when the Rebels faced Baylor in Waco, the Texas Aggies in College Stadium and Tulane in New Orleans ahead of the campus engagement with Southern.

The five October games are with Auburn Oct. 2 in Jackson, Georgia here on the 9th, South Carolina in a night game in Columbia on the 16th, Vanderbilt in Nashville on the 23rd and LSU in Baton Rouge the night of Oct. 30.

Tennessee will host the Rebels Nov. 13 in Knoxville and the annual Ole Miss-Mississippi State campaign finale will be a Jackson-based game for the fourth consecutive year on Nov. 20.

That date is the earliest Ole Miss will have ended a football season in 56 years, since 1920.

The 1976 Rebel schedule:

Sept. 4	Memphis State (n)	Memphis
Sept. 11	Alabama (S)	Jackson
Sept. 18	Tulane	Campus
Sept. 25	Southern	Hattiesburg
